Health clinic to close doors

BY RICHARD MEEK

Coastal Family Health Care Center in Bay St. Louis, a non-profit organization providing health care to uninsured, underinsured, Medicaid and Medicare Bay area residents, announced it will be closing its office on Sept. 30.

Coastal Executive Director Kathryn Shanks said the organization had to take a practical and realistic approach to planning.

She said the center had to "position ourselves to be able to be the most prepared we can be for the impending changes in health care. We know we cannot anticipate increased federal funding, or even funding which will keep up with increasing costs."

Congress has difficult choices to make as they struggle with budget reduction issues," she said. "To survive, our center must be positioned to do the best and most we can for our patients. This means consolidating services wherever we can."

Shanks said Coastal will keep open centers in Gulfport, Biloxi, Saucier and Vancleave.

Basic dental care is also provided at the Gulfport and Biloxi clinics.

Coastal Family Health Care

Center first opened in 1978. In a manner we can.

"By folding the Hancock County clinic into our other sites, we reduce overhead dollars. We know this inconveniences some of our valued Hancock County patients and we truly regret this.

"We will stand by our commitment to these patients by providing care to them at our other clinic locations."

NASA changes should affect Stennis little

BY ED LEPOMA

NASA's plans to turn over day-to-day operations of the nation's space shuttle program should have little effect on the giant Stennis Space Center here in Hancock County.

The joint opinion is shared by an astronaut and the Stennis Space Center Director Roy S. Estess.

Three of the five astronauts who flew aboard the latest Space Shuttle Discovery mission came to NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center Monday to personally thank employees who played a vital role in the mission.

Designated mission STS-70, the Discovery lifted off July 13 with a crew of five aboard. It returned July 19 and marked the shortest turnaround ever between U.S. Space Shuttle flights-only six days.

It was also the first flight ever of a Block I configuration Space Shuttle Main Engine.

Engine 2036 was tested and flight-certified at Stennis, and features modifications designed to improve engine performance and safety and reduce operating costs.

Shuttle Commander Terence "Tom" Henricks, pilot Kevin Kregel and mission specialist Nancy Currie fielded questions from Stennis employees and the media, who nearly filled the auditorium the Visitor's Center.

Henricks said he and Kregel came to Stennis in January to personally witness the last test firing of the engine. "It was quite awesome," he said, "and it motivated us as a team."

"The next time we saw the engine we were strapped on top of it."

Henricks said he saw the movie, "Apollo 13" a couple of times, and thought it gave a big boost to the future of the

Commission gives nod to B&B

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Controversial plans for a bed and breakfast at the former Camp Onward zipped through the Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission last week.

In a five-one vote, the commission recommended approval of the special exception necessary to operate the facility at 972 South Beach Boulevard. The 150-year-old dwelling is amid restoration, after more than a decade of neglect.

City Council will receive the commission's recommendation at a Sept. 5 meeting, but officials said it may be October before the application receives final action. Nicholas and Audrey Tournillon, applicants in the proposal, apparently want a postponement until they are able to be present.

Wednesday night's session was the fourth time the issue has been on the commission's agenda for action--two meetings were canceled for a lack of a quorum. In an August 10 session, however, the commission deadlocked in a two-two tie vote, and had no recommendation to send to council.

While council could have considered the matter last week under those circumstances, most councilmen agreed with the commission that it should reconsider the issue and try to come up with a recommendation for or against it.

Council President Tad Black, who represents the area in question, complained that his constituents have been attending meeting after meeting to oppose the bed and breakfast. He questioned the legality of the commission reconsidering the issue, without re-advertising the meeting for 30 days. But city attorney John Scalfide said the commission staff had met the law's requirements by posting public advisories and notifying the media.

Wednesday's session drew a crowd--but it was not as large nor as unruly as the hours-long Aug. 10 meeting. Commission chairman David Bassett announced at the onset that no comments would be taken from the public since the issues had been extensively debated at the previous public hearing.

Except for muttering among themselves at times, the audience was subdued.

The commission members, meanwhile, quietly debated the merits of the proposal, with only commissioner Tommy Chapman saying he feared ramifications of the development. While the four-room bed and breakfast won't generate undue traffic, he said, putting one in a "prime residential area" would open the door to other applications for similar establishments.

"I don't see how we could not allow numerous others in the same area," said Chapman.

Other commissioners rejected the domino theory, and the argument that the establishment would generate commercialization in the residential area.

Bassett said the city's approved bed and breakfast sites are now "scattered" in various locations. And any other application for a similar establishment would be considered on its own merits, he said.

Bassett said he opposes commercialization of residential areas, but doesn't consider the small inn in that context. It's more similar to a "home occupation," he said, and a quiet one at that.

"I wouldn't vote for a retail store or gas station in the neighborhood," Bassett added.

Melony Mitchell, who made the motion to recommend approval, said she wouldn't favor a string of bed and breakfast establishments all along the beach.

Thursday, Mitchell said she favored the Tournillon's request because the one-acre site is large enough to accommodate a small establishment "without violating or interfering with the privacy of the residents along the beach."

"I also feel that a bed and breakfast establishment at this location would, in fact, create a positive environment along the beach. But first and foremost, we would be preserving a

Tax sale Monday

BY ED LEPOMA

Thousands of parcels of property will be sold at public auction Monday to satisfy tax liens filed against them by the Hancock County Tax Assessor.

Assessor Edward D. Murtagh Jr. said the bidding will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the second floor Courtroom of the Hancock County Courthouse on Main Street, or be moved to the Board of Supervisors' meeting room, if the auction attracts a large crowd.

He said plans are to break for lunch from noon until 1 p.m. and stop the auction at 4:30 p.m. each day. Murtagh

V-J Day celebration Sept. 2

BY RICHARD MEEK

A celebration of V-J Day has been scheduled on Sept. 2 at 8 a.m. at the Hancock County Walking Track in front of the Hancock Medical Center.

The American Legion Post 139 and the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3253 will sponsor the celebration, which has as its theme, "To the Colors." A wreath laying ceremony in memory of those killed in World War II is also set.

Those scheduled to attend are U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor, as well as the Bay High School Air Force J.R.O.T.C. and the Boy Scouts. The city will raise the 15x25' U.S. Holiday Flag at the ceremony, and will keep it flying through Labor Day.

Bay represented at women's event

The Bay area was represented Saturday at festivities in Biloxi celebrating the 75th anniversary of women's right to vote.

Five thespians from Bay St. Louis enacted the third act of "Susan B Anthony," a play written by Gary Paul Lehmann. The play details the trial of the suffragette.

The play was presented at the George Ohr Cultural Center in daylong activities that were part of celebrations on the coast.

Alice Holmes played the part of Susan B. Anthony. Glen Sandberg, the presiding judge; Richard McCollough, the prosecuting attorney; Dick Ehrbright, the court clerk; and Ted Christian.

Vote totals match

An examination Wednesday of the ballots from the District 4 Supervisor race verified the certified tallies.

Malcolm Jones, attorney for District 4 candidate Thomas Williams, had petitioned Hancock County Circuit Clerk Pamela Metzler for an examination of the ballots. After a lengthy six-hour session, the totals from Wednesday matched the numbers from the certified tallies.

"Never had a doubt the numbers would match," Metzler said. "It just reinforced that the Stechmann, the defense attorney. The play was directed by Edith Back.

Edith Dantagnon, 92, and a longtime resident of Bay St. Louis, was among special guests invited to the ceremonies, and asked to speak about Aug. 26, 1920, the day Congress ratified the 19th Amendment, which gave women the right to vote.

Back said others participating included those involved in the coast chapter of the League of Women Voters, currently being organized.

They included President Gigi Sandberg and Jean Reeves, vice president, both of Bay St. Louis; and Sarah Scott of Pass Christian.

computer equipment is correct."

Metzler said Jones examined all of the ballots, including absentee ballots and affidavits. Metzler said she was not sure what Jones was looking for.

The certified results of Aug. 11 from the Aug. 8 election showed Williams was three votes shy of Harry Favre of earning a runoff spot with Steve Seymour. Seymour led all District 4 candidates with 473 votes. Favre collected 313 votes, Williams 310.

Seymour and Favre will meet in a runoff on Tuesday.

Corp announces additional reforms

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers announced several changes to the Clean Water Act wetlands program designed to reduce regulatory burdens and minimize the time and expense of landowners seeking permits under the Section 404 regulatory program.

These initiatives are part of a comprehensive 40-point wetlands plan issued by the Clinton administration in August 1993, as well as a part of the administration's recent regulatory reinvention initiative announced in February 1995.

This plan and the reinvention initiative continue to make the wetlands program fairer and more flexible for landowners and more effective in protecting aquatic resources.

On July 27, the Corps of Engineers published in the Fed-

Registration for Bay PRCC night classes

Registration for night classes offered in Bay St. Louis by Pearl River Community College will be held at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 29, in the M.R. White Coliseum on the PRCC campus.

Classes will begin Wednesday, Aug. 30.

To enroll in classes at PRCC, all students must provide GED scores, high school transcripts showing graduation date, or an official transcript from the last college they attended.

Students who have not completed English 1113, English composition I, and College Algebra must have an ACT score on file prior to registration.

A list of the night classes will be available after Aug. 25.

For more information, call PRCC at 795-6801.

eral Register a nationwide permit for the construction of expansion of single family homes in wetlands. The permit was announced by the President July 12 and will become effective Sept. 25.

The permit will allow landowners to affect up to one-half acre of non-tidal wetlands for construction or expansion of a home and attendant structures such as a driveway or garage.

Landowners will no longer have to go through the more lengthy individual permit process which typically takes more than 120 days. Under general permits, landowners receive decisions on their applications in an average of 16 days.

Also on July 19, the Corps proposed to establish an administrative appeals process allowing landowners to challenge wetlands jurisdiction determinations and permit denials without going to court. This will save landowners the considerable time and expense of having to resort to judicial actions, when faced with a decision they find unsatisfactory.

The proposed appeals process was published in the July 19 Federal Register to begin the public comment process, which closes Sept. 5.

In response to public concern about the time required to obtain permit decisions, the Corps is preparing rule changes which will establish a 90-day processing time for decisions on standard permits.

These changes will promote more predictability for permit applicants. The draft changes are near completion and will be ready for publication by the end of this year.

The Corps and other federal agencies published draft guidance encouraging the use of wetlands mitigation banks in March 1995. Comments received in response to the draft have been reviewed and evaluated. The agencies are preparing the final policy document and expect to publish it in the Federal Register within the next few weeks. Mitigation banking will facilitate wise environmental management in the wetlands related programs of each of the agencies, and give permit applicants more flexibility in meeting mitigation requirements.

The Corps is preparing a rule change that will eliminate the requirement to collect the current permit fees of $10 and $100 for private and commercial activities respectively. These fees cost the Corps more to administer than the amounts of the fees collected.

The revision is scheduled for publication before the end of the year. Not only will this remove the requirement for permittees to pay a fee, but it will also save the taxpayer dollars now spent in administering a fee program that is not cost effective.

In March 1995, the Corps proposed in the Federal Register a program that will allow the Corps to rely on private sector wetlands delineators. The comments received in response to that notice have been reviewed and evaluated.

For more information concerning the changes being announced, please contact Michael L. Davis, chief of the Corps of Engineers Regulatory Program, or Jack Chowning, Regulatory Branch point of contact for the reinvention initiative, at (202) 761-1781.

RODRICK "ROCKY" PULLMAN

Democratic Candidate for
SUPERVISOR
Hancock County • District 2

I would like to thank the people of District 2 for being so nice during my door-to-door campaign. If I missed anyone, I would like to take this opportunity to ask that you consider me on August 29th as your District 2 Supervisor.

If elected as your Supervisor, I will work with all county and city governments to improve living conditions in Hancock County and offer fair and equal treatment to every citizen. I will work to bring new industries to Hancock County and push for these industries to hire as many local residents as possible.

If elected, I will stay in touch with you, the people.

IF YOU WANT A CHANGE IN THE WAY HANCOCK COUNTY IS BEING RUN, PLEASE VOTE RODRICK "ROCKY" PULLMAN ON AUGUST 29TH. THANK YOU.

EDITORIAL

County voters speak out

The political winds of change sweeping the country the past year have also blown into Hancock County. Last fall, voters in Waveland said out with the old, in with the new, electing an entire new Board of Aldermen and mayor. Earlier this month, in the first significant election since legalized gambling, county voters also showed apathy for the past.

Familiar names, once considered political untouchables, went down in stunning defeat. Others are fighting for their political lives either in Tuesday's runoff or in the November general election.

County voters laid down a gauntlet to pols and would-be pols to either perform or get booted out of office. They are no longer content with business-as-usual politics. Voters are demanding performance for their tax dollars. What a refreshing message.

Certainly no other county in Mississippi, and very few places in the country, have undergone such a dramatic change as Hancock County in the past five years. The advent of gaming has altered not only the political landscape but the economic structure as well.

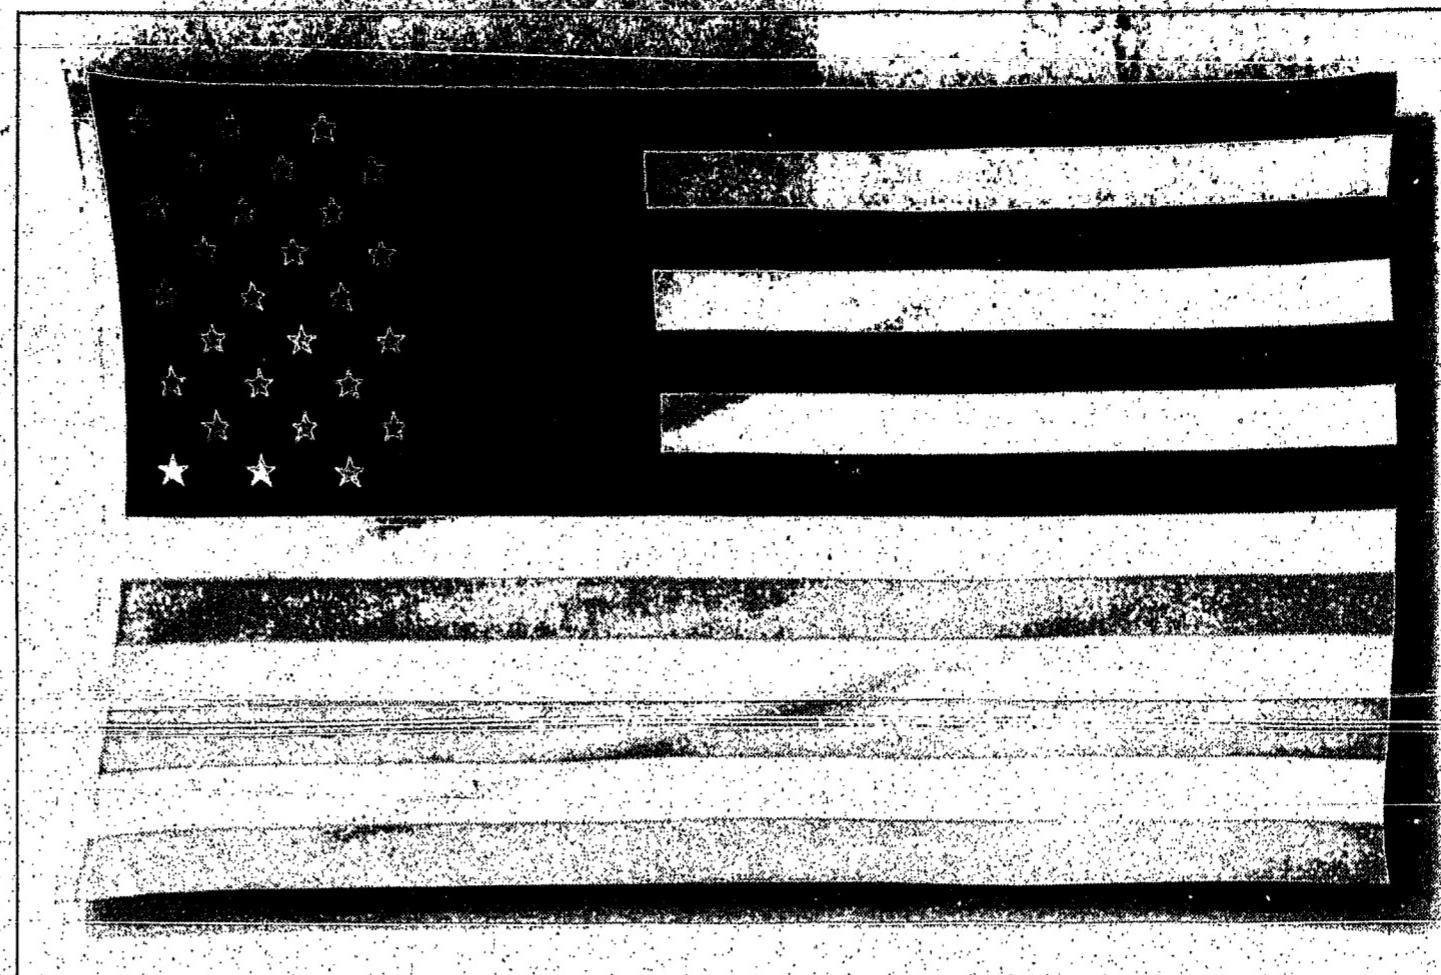

Many of the casino employees are new to the area, therefore are unfamiliar and unattached to the brokers that have dictated county politics for so long. They have moved absent of political ties, and are voting as such.

Consequently, one-time political titans have been caught napping, unaware their power base had shrunk. For the first time in quite some time, many have had to resharpen their campaign trail skills.

Gaming has also become the county's main economic base. Consider that over $2 million annually in gaming revenue swells the Bay St. Louis coffers. The county receives over $1 million and will be in line for much more if a proposed casino in Diamondhead opens.

The expansions predicated by gaming have met with resistance by many. Change is always painful, especially in a once sleepy county awakening to a new world of economic development and growth.

Growth is inevitable. As such, political candidates must be able to meet the demands of the new Hancock County voter.

Mississippians benefit from electric association upgrades

A rural electric power association in Taylorsville, which serves 15 south and central Mississippi counties, plans to add facilities to serve 4,036 new consumers, construct 259 miles of distribution line and make other improvements to its system with a $13.7 million direct loan from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Utilities Service.

South Mississippi Congressman Gene Taylor, who has helped spearhead and develop several utility projects to assist Mississippi's rural residents, praised the Department of Agriculture for its decision to approve the loan.

"This is outstanding news for the thousands of Mississippians who inevitably will benefit from the association's efforts to improve, enhance and serve the rural residents of Mississippi."

The Rural Utilities Service is a new agency created late last year as a result of the reorganization of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It administers the electric and telecommunications programs previously handled by the Rural Electrification Administration, which was abolished in an effort to streamline the administration's operations.

Wally Beyer, Rural Utilities Service administrator said the loan to Southern Pine Electric Power Association will be for 35 years at a variable interest rate.

In addition, it will obtain $5.9 million in supplemental financing for its project from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation.

The cooperative provides electric service to the Forrest, Lamar, Clarke, Copiah, Covington, Jasper, Jefferson Davis, Jones, Lawrence, Lincoln, Newton, Rankin, Scott, Simpson and Smith counties.

The Rural Utilities Service and its predecessor federal agency, the Rural Electrification Administration, has been financing rural electric utilities, located throughout Mississippi and the entire United States since 1935.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bed and breakfast proposal based on financial gain

To the Editor:

Having been away from the city for several weeks, this is my first opportunity to reply to your editorial of August 13 in which you strongly supported the application for a B & B on South Beach Boulevard.

You opened your editorial by stating that "innocent, well-meaning and articulate citizens are in danger when trying to do anything different or beneficial in the Bay."

You can't be serious! The applicants are not residents or citizens of the Bay and seem to have no such plans.

Their proposal is not innocent or well meaning, but solely based on their own financial self interested.

You concluded by stating: "The Bay Council has an opportunity to do the right thing and approve the exception." Many wonder if Mr. Tournillion or his attorney wrote this.

You mentioned lack of decorum at the P & Z meeting. I agree with you that such action is not acceptable.

That, however, does not change the issue, which is: an application by a non-resident to install a clear commercial operation in a super residential neighborhood.

As pointed out in my letter of July 20 to P & Z and the Bay Council, there is no compelling advantage to the city to grant this exception, and once a single exception is granted it may be politically and legally impossible to refuse similar future applications.

If the application is granted, I will have to consider the financial advantage of also converting my property at 978 South Beach Boulevard to a B & B as will others.

Zoning ordinances in a sense constitute a contract between the city and the various property owners. Granting an exception is tantamount to spot rezoning and may constitute a breach of the zoning agreement with all other property owners.

Sincerely,
Bob Breeden
Bay St. Louis

Cleaning up our sewage is a necessary expense

Dear Editor:

Our thanks go to the Sea Coast Echo and Mr. Weston for addressing one of Hancock County's toughest problems: we drink, swim in and fish in water contaminated by our own excrement and urine. As the article stated, a boat ride along the canals and bayous (both below and above I-10) reveals lots of sewer connections dumping directly into the water.

The reasons people give for discharging their wastes are the usual ones: cost savings, tradition and a belief that one family's sewage doesn't add much to the overall water quality problem. We have learned these reasons don't hold up well to scrutiny.

Living in our own and our neighbors' sewage isn't cheaper if we or our children become ill. A typhoid or cholera infection is extremely debilitating and costly to treat. Common illnesses like diarrhea and nausea can often be traced to swimming or water-skiing in polluted waters or from drinking out of contaminated wells, and these illnesses also take their toll on our health.

When our grandfathers plumb their sewage into the bayou, they had a lot fewer neighbors doing the same thing. And our grandfathers had an excuse: they probably didn't have a choice. We do.

Hancock County's soils don't perk well until you go north of Kiln. This means the effluent from our septic tanks, even with a operational drain field, is going to run into the nearest flowing water whenever rain saturates the soil. A little sewage can be adequately diluted in a large body of water, but even a small community's sewage cannot be properly diluted in our bayous and bays.

With the sewage problems well known to our representatives and supervisors, many elected officials still fight against establishing rural treatment systems. It's time to let them know if we are willing to spend the dollar a day per family that it will take to treat our sewage.

If the county continues to grow as it has recently, we will need to build more treatment systems before we build more homes and businesses. It is a clearly defined decision to make.

Let's perform an objective, comprehensive review of the fecal coliform counts in our bayous and rivers, right after a good rain, to get a handle on the indicators of human and animal wastes in our waters. Let this be a study driven by health concerns, not tourism and politics. Then we should elect legislators who will support building the treatment plants in areas where they are needed.

It's hard to see a downside to cleaning up our sewage, since it will help make Hancock County a healthier place to live and will enhance our property values, too.

Mark Holloman

'CUEVAS' QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

It is good to see the signal lights at U.S. 90 and Washington are now operational.

I can recall requests from Bay officials for signals at the intersection and being turned down by the state Highway Department.

I know several folks, including one of my sisters-in-law, who got zapped by crossing motorists at the intersection.

Many are saying it is about time for the signals to be installed at the U.S. 90-Washington intersection, and I agree with them.

It also seems to be easier at the Main Street-U.S. 90 intersection with the new signals.

Bay St. Louis needs to get a lot of credit for the work its crews did at the intersection.

Bay crews constructed new and wider turning lanes, and the Highway Department installed the new signals.

Even with the new signals, one has to be extremely careful because of the increase in traffic.

Don't forget to vote on Tuesday in the primary runoffs.

There are races to be settled in both the Democratic and Republican primaries.

In checking the returns from the Aug. 8 primaries, I should not have to mention the importance that every vote counts.

Just one or two votes made the difference in several of the races.

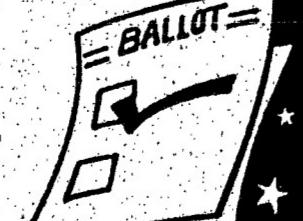

Remember, the polls will be open from 7 a.m.-7 p.m.

If you voted in one of the primary elections on Aug. 8, you have to vote the same party for the runoff.

It is unlawful to vote for different parties in the same primary election.

Be sure to vote Tuesday.

BREWER'S WORLD

By Jimmie Brewer

It was a sultry, sticky, late-summer afternoon — time for a leisurely activity. Beads of perspiration were already beginning to show through my old, tattered, blue, homemade golfing shirt.

The ranger on the first tee greeted us as we pulled up to the starting point.

"How ya hittin' 'em lately, Brewer?" he asked with a chuckle, already knowing.

(He's seen me hit at least a thousand ball straight into the woods on the right side of the fairway.)

"Great, I think I'll be ready to break onto the PGA Tour before long, Lou. Thanks for asking."

And with that, I strapped on my worn golf glove, the one that now exposes the tip of my little finger and part of my palm.

"Today is the big day, Lou," I said with as much confidence as I could muster.

It's something I always say before hitting my first ball. It's also the ranger's cue to start seeking safe shelter behind a tree.

I pulled a couple of resuscitated golf balls out of a brown paper bag (Mary won't allow me to use the ones that come in boxes) and reached in my pale-green golf bag and selected a beaten-up 5-wood, whose manufacturer is unknown and unwanted.

Looking as much like a seasoned golfer as I could, I strolled up to the tee box, teed up my ball, stepped back and began my practice swings. Perfect rhythm, and I thought today may indeed be my day. Up to the ball I stepped, I wiggled my driver around a bit, dug my K-Mart golf shoes into the turf, bent my knees just slightly, straightened my back and glared at the ball with intense concentration. At this moment I was one with the golf course.

Keep your head down, I told myself, a nice steady, controlled back swing. Attack the ball on your down swing. Shift your weight. Let the club do the work. I was ready.

I pulled the club back with my shoulders, twisted my hips and swung. Crack! The club face had struck the ball. To no surprise, the ball headed for the tree tops on the right side. This is when the golfing gods intervened, and somehow — just when I was ready to tee up again — steered that golf ball around the trees and threw it back in the fairway. A perfect hook!

Acting as if I had just won the U.S. Open in a playoff with Fred Couples, I thrust my hands over my head, let the club fall from my grip and dropped to my knees to savor the moment.

No, it wasn't a hole-in-one. By anyone else's standards, it wasn't even a good drive. But, it was in the fairway (something I rarely accomplish) and I was playing the world's greatest game in the world's greatest place, Paradise.

Praise for do-gooders this week goes out to you folks who play just for the fun of it.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Pork

Pork, leaner and more tasty these days than in prior times, lends itself to many dishes in which the more expensive veal cuts were formerly used.

I often make a scallopini of pork, instead of the traditional veal scallopini, and I find it just as delicious. Incidentally, I have often used chicken breast cutlets as a substitute for the more pricey veal. Why stay in the same old recipe rut?

One of my favorite quick-and-easy dishes is:

PORK SCALLOPINE A LA MARSALA

Pork tenderloin slices or thin cutlets or even thinner than thin breakfast chops may be used, pounded as thin as possible before cooking.

1 lb. pork cutlets or tenderloin slices, thinly sliced

5 Tbsp. butter or margarine

Flour for coating slices

Black pepper, salt to your taste

1 wine glass (2 jiggers) Marsala wine, or sherry if you prefer

Pound the pork cutlets to slices thin, thin.

Dip pork slices in flour seasoned with pepper and salt. Melt the butter in a skillet, and brown the slices on one side for 3 minutes, turn and brown other side. Add the Marsala (or sherry) and cook for just another minute or so.

Remove scallopine to a warmed serving dish. Stir the sauce in the skillet and ladle over the pork. (3 or 4 servings) sone rice or with noodles and a green salad or fruit salad.

I like to serve this with sea-

I also like to bread thin pork cutlets or chops and bake them along with rounds of orange and grapefruit or apple, as the tang of the fruit goes so well with the chops.

And, when serving pork chops or roast, I like to accompany the meat at times with citrus salads of various sorts, for instance this:

SPICY CUCUMBER AND FRUIT SALAD

1/2 medium canteloupe, seeded, peeled and cut into 1/2-inch cubes

1 medium cucumber, peeled and sliced 1/4-inch thick

1/2 pt. strawberries, hulled

Book de-mystifies Mississippi's image

In Multiparty Politics in Mississippi 1877-1902, Stephen Cresswell, a professor of history at West Virginia Wesleyan College, reveals how lesser known parties in the 19th century were a significant force in Magnolia State politics.

Prior to the rise of Republican parties in the 1970s, Democratic governors ruled Mississippi for more than 11 decades and the state sent only Democrats to Congress for eight.

However, in the years covered by Cresswell's book groups including Republicans, Greenbackers, Populists and Independents kept busy at work publishing newspapers, winning converts, and running candidates for political office.

In his study of splinter politics, Cresswell debunks Mississippi's stereotypical image as a stronghold of Democrats by assessing the meaning of the force gained by agrarian protest parties that surprisingly seized control of tier counties.

Never possessing complete political control of this poor, overwhelmingly agricultural state, these smaller groups were able to influence the controversial Mississippi Constitution of 1890, which prevails today.

Examples of Mississippi political life during the post-Reconstruction era in descriptions of such popular spectator sports as political barbecues, fiddling, candidates, duels, riots, and fist-fights illustrate the dramatic struggle between the parties.

Copies of Multiparty Politics in Mississippi 1877-1902 ($40) are available at bookstores and libraries or from the publisher at 1-800-737-7788.

Student graduates from academy

Dale C. DeCamp Jr. of Bay St. Louis was one of 54 students who graduated from the Harrison County Law Enforcement Academy Aug. 4.

DeCamp, 21, enrolled in the academy as part of the degree program in criminal justice at the University of Southern Mississippi. Academy graduation qualifies a graduate to work for a law enforcement entity to within one year of joining that operation.

DeCamp is a senior majoring in criminal justice and the son of Arthur Rieben and Carol Rieben, both of Bay St. Louis.

The Harrison County Law Enforcement Academy is offered four times annually.

10-week, 400-hour school that includes classroom, physical fitness and specialized training.

The state of Mississippi requires officers for any Mississippi law enforcement entity to complete academy training within one year of joining that operation.

DeCamp is a senior majoring in criminal justice and the son of Arthur Rieben and Carol Rieben, both of Bay St. Louis.

Economy's soft landing may change your investment strategy

By Mark Turner

Soft-landing. You may have heard this term used in discussions about the U.S. economy, but you may not be exactly sure what it means or what impact it will have on your investment strategy. So it may help to have a better understanding of this "state of the economy" so you can plan your investments accordingly:

As you know, the Federal Reserve raised interest rates seven times last year, which was done to temper inflation as well as suppress rapid economic growth, and thus give the economy a "soft landing" for this year.

So far, these moves have worked, and as a result, the stock market has made a significant climb this year. But future interest-rate hikes could cause the economy to slow too much and send the stock market downward.

So how could this change your investment strategy? Maybe not much or maybe a great deal, but should the market take that downward turn, you may want to think about the following ideas as ways to keep your investment portfolio running smoothly:

* Defensive stocks. Defensive stocks are those that report steady earnings, regardless of the current business cycle, and do not fluctuate in stock price nearly as much as other stocks during market swings.

Among the stocks that would fall under this classification are foods, drugs and utilities. These particular industries provide products or services that are always in demand.

Although some investors feel defensive stocks are only worth having during down times in the market, these stocks can potentially help you from taking large losses if the market drops from a recent peak, which can add some stability to your long-term rates stabilize.

* Dollar cost averaging. This long-used method provides a steady, disciplined approach to investing. Investors can simply designate a set amount of money every month to purchase stocks, bonds or mutual funds.

By using this, investors buy more shares when prices are low and fewer shares when prices are high.

This strategy can help those investors who are willing to maintain a long-term approach. Keep in mind that this strategy does not necessarily guarantee profits or avoid losses, and you should consider your financial and emotional abilities to continue this method during low points in the market.

* Treasury securities. Since the Federal Reserve should hold interest rates steady in the near term, Treasury securities might provide you a solid investment as their long-term rates stabilize.

Like all government obligations, Treasury securities are guaranteed by the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government and provide the highest degree of safety available.

Because they are backed by the taxing power of the government, Treasury Notes guarantee that you will receive your principal amount plus the stated coupon rate as long as you hold the securities until maturity. Also, Treasury securities are free from state and local taxes.

Although no investment can ever guarantee you success, these are some of the ways you can add possible stability to your investment portfolio. But before considering any of these investments, consult a professional investment broker who can tell you if these or other investment vehicles are best suited for your financial objectives.

Editor's note: Turner is a registered representative of A.G. Edward & Sons, Inc.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—SUNDAY, AUGUST 27, 1995

Financial Focus

Goals and Objectives

ARTICLE V.

Present investment decisions should be influenced by our future needs.

There's a direct relationship between the amount of money we wish to accumulate and the number of years we have to accumulate it.

To illustrate, let's assume you wish to accumulate a $12,000 college education fund for your newborn child. You believe the child will enter college in 20 years, and you're expecting an annual rate of return of 12 percent.

To reach this goal you'll have to invest $12.13 per month. If you wait five years — now you have only 15 years to meet your goal — you'll have to invest $24.02 per month, and if you procrastinate another 10 years, you'll have to invest $146.93 per month to achieve the same dollar goal.

So you see, time can be a real asset in planning for our children's education or our retirement — if we don't let it slip away! The more time we have, the fewer dollars we need.

Advice we receive on investments should be weighed in relation to the source. I'm reminded of the cartoon — two brokers sitting on a park bench discussing their investment strategy. I tend to discount advice from the never-do-wells or one stands to benefit strongly on the advice he or she distributes.

Investing, as we've mentioned before, should not be based on hot tips or hunches.

When you select a broker or adviser, ask for his or her philosophy on investing — get to know the broker or adviser you choose.

Once you trust your broker, take him or her into your complete confidence and explain in detail your goals and resources. The more your adviser or broker knows you and what you want, the better he or she will be able to serve you.

Remember what we've said before — it's your money, so ask questions and get answers. Don't be shy.

Sanders, Turner voted top cashiers

Jennifer Sanders and Vicki Turner from the Bay St. Louis store, are among 80 Winn-Dixie cashiers throughout Louisiana and Mississippi who have been named Favorite Cashiers.

The annual Favorite Cashier program allows customers to vote for the cashiers who provide outstanding service and courtesy.

"We at Winn-Dixie feel it is essential to recognize the contributions of our associates," said Keith Lavigne, marketing director Winn-Dixie Louisiana.

"This program provides customers with a way to thank cashiers for their dedication and friendliness. Congratulations to all the winners and thank you for your efforts."

Favorite Cashiers voting took place over a two-week period in early June as customers filled out ballots at the checkout registers.

The winning cashiers received a luncheon honoring all the favorite cashiers in the division; an award certificate; a Winn-Dixie Courtesy Award pin and a $25 gift certificate.

Winn-Dixie Stores Inc. is one of the nation's largest supermarket retailers with more than 1,180 stores throughout 14 states and the Bahamas.

Winn-Dixie Louisiana operates 87 stores in Louisiana and Mississippi. The company is dedicated to providing customers with the lowest possible prices every day.

Unemployment rate improves

Labor force conditions in the Magnolia State were dramatically improved between June and July, despite some scattered layoffs which sent county rates soaring in a few instances. The state enjoyed a rise of about 20,500 in total persons employed, while the jobless number fell by some 16,600 people.

It appears that the state economy was able to absorb most of the flood of students into the summertime job market, with others abandoning their job search half way into vacation time.

The gains occurred despite some downturns in certain employment sectors. Farm-related jobs were down about ten percent, a normal occurrence for July as crops were in a 'low maintenance' period.

The 6.1 percent unemployment rate for July was the lowest for that particular month in 16 years, coming in some 1.4 points lower than June and well below the 6.9 rate recorded in July of last year.

If the current conditions continue, the year has a real chance of bettering any recent year in terms of joblessness.

When adjusted for seasonality, the July rate stood at 5.7 percent, down three-tenths of a point from June.

Some 17 counties reported rates of less than five percent while 16 suffered double digit unemployment rates.

Rankin, Lamar and Lafayette counties recorded the lowest rates in the state with Jeff Davis and Holmes registering the highest percentages.

It is anticipated that rates will remain about the same in August, before falling sharply in September as students return to school and agricultural harvest activity begins.

Instability in interest rates, high fuel costs and a shaky dollar could cause some problems in the latter half of the year, but that remains to be seen.

Of the three coastal counties,

Spraberry joins Bayshore Realty

James Spraberry has joined ERA Bayshore Realty in Waveland as a sales associate, Herb Dubuisson, president, announced recently.

By joining a firm which is affiliated with ERA Real Estate, the nation's second largest real estate franchise organization, Spraberry will be able to offer home buyers and sellers a wide variety of products and services.

These include ERA Real Estate's Buyer and Seller Protection Plans, referral services and the Sellers Security Plan.

ERA Bayshore Realty is a member of ERA Real Estate with over 3,000 offices in the United States, Australia, Japan, France, England and Korea.

the government's part for the shuttle program. "It is important for the public to continue the space program," he said. "It is also important for them to know our very lives depend on them. They test every engine we fly," said Henricks.

He said the movie was very positive and showed the teamwork that is needed at all levels to achieve success of missions.

Henricks said he thinks the movie will achieve what NASA officials have so far failed to do — impress Congress on the importance of the manned space program — so they won't always be tempted to cut back funding.

"It may affect some of our government personnel to listen, if the agency begins downshifting, but the work at Stennis is very important and integral to the space program. It will continue."

The main objective of the STS-70 mission was to deploy the Tracking and Data Relay Satellite-G, the last in a series of a space-based satellite network. The satellite is part of a network that provides communications, tracking, telemetry, data acquisition and command services that are essential to Shuttle and low-Earth orbital spacecraft missions.

There were numerous other experiments carried on during the mission. Commander

John Grunsfeld, a former

Cambrian, gave the audience a opportunity to photograph Tropical Storm

Chantal.

"Of course, every photo we take is later looked at by meteorologists, biologists and other scientists, but I actually controlled the camera this time, and that was exciting for me."

After briefing Stennis employees and the media, the astronauts mingled among the curious gathered in the reception area. Astronauts and guests were served punch and cake, which had been decorated with the crew's name patch and the date of their mission. They were asked to sign photographs of their crew picture, hats and other souvenirs.

Megan Shan, a sophomore at Ocean Springs High School was among students who came to meet the astronauts. She wants to be a future astronaut, and attended the Space Academy at Huntsville three weeks this summer.

Thirteen-year-old John Calicote of Biloxi was another aspiring astronaut. He said he planned to pursue a medical career with the idea of becoming a flight surgeon aboard a spacecraft one day.

The Discovery was originally scheduled to lift off June 8, but delayed when it was revealed that pesky woodpeckers had chipped holes in sections of the foam lining the spacecraft's external fuel tank. More than 200 holes had to be patched before the go-ahead was given for takeoff.

Undaunted by the delay, the crew adopted a stuffed woodpecker as its mascot for the journey and flew it aboard the spacecraft.

Discovery lifted off July 13, just six days after another Discovery crew had returned to earth. It landed July 22.

The mission also marked the first time since June 1965 that a human space flight mission was controlled from a nearly-completed new Mission Control room in Houston.

national landmark."

Commissioner Linda Beauregard, who was under doctor's orders to rest during a back injury, came to the meeting anyway to back the proposal.

Beauregard said she's been a guest in a number of similar establishments, and finds them well-operated assets in a neighborhood. "I do not want commercialization either," she said. "I don't feel like this is."

Opponents of the proposal had argued orally and via petitions and letters that the establishment would be a commercial intrusion into residential living. They also contended that it represents "creeping commercialism" along the beachfront, and some questioned the historical value of the home itself.

The Tournillons, meanwhile, say they are restoring the former Camp Onward main building in hopes of running it themselves as a small bed and breakfast. They said the expense of maintaining the property properly will be offset somewhat by revenues from guests.

The commission's recommendation for approval is coupled with a list of recommended restrictions that have been attached to the three other city-endorsed bed and breakfast operations.

The restrictions include a requirement that the property remain a dwelling and be occupied by an owner, that rooms be for rent on a nightly basis, and that breakfast be the only meal served.

The restrictions also limit guest activities to those that might normally be expected for visiting friends or relatives, without disturbing the neighborhood.

One off-street parking space is required for each guest bedroom and for two staff or owner automobiles. One sign, of up to 16 square feet, is allowed, and the property may not be made available for paid use by non-B&B guests for private parties, suppers or other such uses.

Even with the commission's positive recommendation and set of restrictions, the proposal heads to an uncertain fate at City Council. While council rarely rejects a commission recommendation, several councilmen have indicated they plan to vote against the proposal.

Clinic

The closure of the Bay clinic may mean an increase in patients at Hancock Medical Center, according to HMC Administrator Don Henderson. Henderson said the hospital will treat emergency cases regardless of the ability to pay.

He added the hospital does accept Medicaid, and will "with each individual on the ability to pay."

However, he urged citizens to use the emergency room for non-emergency illnesses as a "last resort."

He recommended, if feasible, for patients to arrange for transportation to the Coastal facility in Gulfport so individuals can remain with the same doctor.

"I am sure transportation will be an issue for many folks," he said. "The major impact (of the closing) is that many low-income families will not have the same access to primary care as they had before.

"Some lower income families will have a tough time."

The center had previously reduced the scope of services offered by ending patient enrollment to their obstetrical program, according to Coastal officials.

"Our organization and staff constantly find themselves balancing the pressure of community demand with the factors of quality assurance and financial restriction," Shanks said. "With over 84,000 people in Harrison, Hancock and Jackson counties who are at or below poverty level, we could triple our staff and still not take care of all who need us."

"Reality forces us to do more with less, and we know we must do everything we can to be a survivor of health care reform on behalf of our patients."

Fashion show to benefit Our Lady Academy

Fifteen years ago, The Princess Shoppe in Bay St. Louis formed a Teen Board. The purpose of the Teen Board is to assist young ladies in presenting themselves with poise, good manners, self assurance, and to learn the basics of modeling.

The fashion show, "Discovering Yourself at the Princess Shoppe," is at the Pass Christian Yacht Club Tuesday, Aug. 29, at 7:30 p.m. and is benefiting Our Lady Academy. The money is used as seed money for the OLA Food Festival.

Board members with outstanding performance for the 1994-95 year will receive awards. The new Teen Board for 1995-96 will be presented. Refreshments following the show will be provided by the Parents for OLA. Music will be provided by Bill Adams, hairstyles for the Teen Board models will be styled by Hair Works, and door prizes will be drawn.

Tickets will be on sale through Teen Board members, The Princess Shoppe and Our Lady Academy.

Corinna Carver, above, is also a junior at Our Lady Academy and in her second year on the Teen Board. She is a resident of Bay St. Louis.

Katie Hursey, left, is a junior at Our Lady Academy and is in her second year on the Teen Board. She is a resident of Pass Christian.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 77

DOES ANYONE REALLY KNOW WHAT WE DO?

The American Legion Auxiliary has been around for a long time, more than 70 years. In fact, we celebrate this year our 76th, and we are naming it "The Spirit of '76." Americanism, that's our game.

We have given hundreds of hours in volunteer services to our community, many dollars donated to worthy causes and many special projects to assist families and children across our area.

Then there is the Poppy Program, those little red crepe paper flowers made by and for hospitalized veterans — and the many we distribute on Memorial Day.

That's just the beginning.

— We work to prevent substance abuse and teen suicide, child abuse and teen pregnancy.

— We educate our children for leadership.

— We organize community blood drives, emergency relief and disaster relief, citizenship and education programs, child safety materials and legislative action.

— We help our own members through the Auxiliary Emergency and Displaced Homemakers Funds and service our people and their families through the Family Assistance Network.

The auxiliary is this and much more.

Our purpose is to teach and defend the principles of democracy,

Volunteers are needed

Children with attention deficit group planned

Jane O. Cook, PhD, child development specialist of Bienville Clinic announces a special group for children with attention deficit disorder and their parents.

The group features development of social skills, awareness of responsibility for behavior, special academic tutoring, and skills training for parents.

The group meets twice a month for an hour and a half. Children are accepted into the group after careful assessment as to their needs and preparation for the group situation. Although the group is kept small, new groups will open as needed.

School buses under watchful eyes of MHP

Troopers throughout Mississippi have been instructed to extend their duty hours to deliver children to school each weekday morning and home in the afternoon.

Col. Jimmy Stringer, Mississippi Highway Patrol director, said troopers are being asked to remain on duty during peak travel times for school buses.

"Children are our most precious cargo. We want school bus drivers to report motorists who violate laws that regulate traffic when a bus is stopped for the purpose of loading or unloading children," Stringer said.

"We also will be on the lookout for school buses being driven at speeds in excess of the posted limit or in a reckless manner. The attention or inattention a person gives school buses could mean the difference in life or death for our children."

State Department of Education records show 14 children received mild or moderate injuries as the result of school bus-related crashes during the 1994 school year. Two were seriously injured.

"School bus drivers and law enforcement officers must work as a team to make sure our children safely arrive at their destinations," Stringer added. "If any school has a problem the Highway Patrol can assist with, please call my office at 987-1500."

Among the students being transported are kindergarten-age youngsters. These children are younger, smaller and lack the experience and maturity of even first graders," he said. "We believe our troopers being more visible during prime travel time for buses will enhance school bus safety."

Steve Williams, director of school building and transportation for the State Department of Education, said they welcome the special attention from the Mississippi Highway Patrol.

"We appreciate Col. Stringer for alerting troopers to pay close attention to our buses. For two consecutive years we have not had a fatality," Williams said.

"We are fortunate to have such a record since twice each school day an estimated 5,300 buses are on Mississippi's roads and highways transporting approximately 394,734 students to public schools. There were 313 accidents statewide last year."

He said there are more than 10,000 drivers in Mississippi. "This gives us a primary driver and a substitute driver," Williams said. "All have been trained and certified."

Mississippi's school buses have signal lights both front and rear to warn drivers. Yellow flashing lights indicate slowing down, and red flashing lights with the red stop arm extended from the bus is the signal for all lanes of traffic in both directions to stop until the school bus proceeds.

When a school bus displays a stop signal while children are entering or exiting the bus, Mississippi law requires all drivers going in the same or opposite direction to stop. School buses are required to stop at railroad crossings, and motorists should use caution when following a bus that is approaching a crossing.

Bay-Waveland Girl Scouts round up new members

The Bay-Waveland Girl Scout Service Unit is preparing for another troop year of fun and friends and are inviting all interested girls and parents to a Round-up.

The Girl Scout Roundup will be Aug. 31 at the Coast Electric meeting room (Main Street, Bay St. Louis) at 6:30 p.m. Girls should attend with a parent or guardian and bring a registration fee of $6.

Girl Scouting gives girls ages 5-17 the opportunity to develop self-esteem, make new friends, and become a vital part of their community. One of the events the girls participated in last year was an International Tea Tasting.

Each troop prepared food from a different country, dressed in costume, and performed skits or dances native to the country. Each troop also earns badges by completing fun and educational requirements in areas such as cooking, hiking, science and crafts.

Over the past summer, registered Girl Scouts enjoyed a hike down the Buccaneer Park Tree Trail, an afternoon at the Wave Pool, a lock-in sleep-over at the Civic Center and a bowling party in Diamondhead.

Area girls also attended overnight camp at one of the two council Scout camps in Wiggins and Meridian.

In addition, Girl Scouts learn to contribute to the community by doing service projects. The Bay-Waveland troops visit and decorate Dunbar Village Retirement Home each month and have adopted grandparents.

They joined the Natural Resource Earth Team and helped to construct Hancock County Tree Identification Trails. In addition, troops participate in the beach cleanups.

Adults are also encouraged to register and can serve in several capacities. Leaders, consultants and guest speakers are just some of the many volunteer positions available to both women and men.

Speech therapy from a home health perspective

Where can one go for speech therapy services in addition to continued reinforcement from caring people, while enjoying comfortable and familiar surroundings? In their own home.

Speech therapy, like many other home health disciplines, has expanded rehabilitative services to treat those who have difficulty leaving their home.

A speech therapist in home care may address a wide range of services beyond just speaking disorders, and covers the life span from infant to geriatric patients. Speech therapy can benefit a number of home health patients, like the stroke victim who needs to be retrained in receptive or expressive language skills, memory and cognitive skills, and management and training for swallowing difficulties. A laryngectomy patient can learn to speak again by using an electrolarynx esophageal speech or an implant.

Injured injury sufferers resulting from an accident can again learn to use certain skills associated with speech and understanding.

A child experiencing difficulty with language and articulation skills can too benefit from speech therapy exercises while in the home setting.

Regardless of the situation, the therapist tries to address the patient's needs, as well as set goals for the patient's presence. "Patient participation in the rehabilitation setting, in addition to continued support and reinforcement of exercises with the family or primary caregivers."

The care provided in the home often makes it more convenient for family members to take part in the rehabilitation process of their loved one.

The speech therapist can provide instructions to caregivers on how to perform the exercises needed for the patient to regain lost or undeveloped skills. Family members are instrumental in providing the additional reinforcement and encouragement needed for the road to recovery.

"By involving family members in the rehabilitation setting, they can essentially serve as the therapist on the day he or she is not present," says Elizabeth Benvenutti, Home Health speech therapist serving the Mississippi Gulf Coast counties.

Benvenutti also added that not only is the family's participation a major benefit in the patient's care, but the fact that the patient is receiving care in his own home is a motivator in itself. Patients are more relaxed and willing to cooperate during the exercises because they are in familiar surroundings, and on their "own turf," explained Benvenutti.

Although speech therapy is a specialized area of rehabilitation, those therapists practicing in the home health arena must demonstrate a broad focus when treating patients because they never know what area they could be confronted with, whether it be language, speech, swallowing, laryngectomy, or reasoning and understanding skills. Therefore, they must specialize in all possible treatment areas that involve speech therapy.

Speech therapy is a growing area of home health that not only allows, but welcomes family and/or caregiver participation during treatment. The patient receives excellent care from the therapist, in addition to continued reinforcement from family members, all while being in the relaxed and familiar surroundings of their own home.

Good news from ACT

Mississippi Educators received good news this week from the results of the ACT scores for graduating high school seniors of 1995. Officials with ACT, a college preparatory exam, notified the Mississippi Department of Education that

Dale Brown to be honored by Boys Town

"It is a record not measured in wins and losses, but in lives reclaimed and promises fulfilled. In this area, too, Dale Brown is a champion."

These were the words of Father Val J. Peter, executive director of Father Flanagan's Boys Town, who announced that Boys Town would honor LSU Men's Basketball Coach Dale Brown with its 1995 Spirit of Youth Award.

The Boys Town Spirit of Youth Award is given to an individual or organization who embodies the spirit of youth through their work, words, actions or example. Brown will be the first Louisiana recipient.

The award will be presented at a benefit luncheon Sept. 20 at the Sheraton New Orleans Hotel. Brown, Father Peter and many fans of both will be on hand for the presentation.

Tickets are $35 per person and are available through Boys Town of New Orleans at (504) 949-9248.

Brown, 59, is entering his 23rd year of coaching at LSU. He has long supported Boys Town and many other youth organizations. "More importantly," said Father Peter, "we honor him for the way he shares his love and talents with people of all ages."

Father Flanagan's Boys Town is a national leader in the care of troubled youth. The organization operates in 16 major U.S. cities — including New Orleans — as well as Boys Town, Nebraska, the famed healing community founded by Father Edward J. Flanagan in 1917.

In 1994, Boys Town directly served more than 24,000 children around the United States and assisted more than 500,000 children and parents through the Boys Town National Hotline.

A private non-profit, non-sectarian organization, Boys Town is supported nationally by thousands of donors in every state.

North Bay administrator nominated

Kimberly M. Stasny, North Bay Elementary, has been nominated in the 1995 Administrator of the Year program.

The program, mandated by Senate Bill 3350 in the 1994 legislative session, is designed to recognize outstanding achievement and performance by Mississippi's public school administrators and to bring the best administrative practices to the attention of other schools.

Each local school district has the opportunity to honor its administrators by nominating one for the state title. The Mississippi Administrator of the Year must exhibit a superior ability to inspire instructors, possess exemplary leadership capabilities and be an active member of the local community.

The program is not an attempt to find the "best" administrator in the state, but a means to honor an individual who is representative of the excellent professionals we have in Mississippi.

Five finalists, one from each of the five congressional districts, will be chosen and interviewed by a selection committee of educators in September.

From these five, one Administrator of the Year and one runner-up will be chosen.

The Mississippi Administrator of the Year will receive a $5,000 supplement (paid by the Department of Education to the administrator's contracted salary in the year subsequent to receiving the recognition) and will be formally recognized by the State Board of Education.

Fans encouraged to practice safety

Mississippians traveling to cheer their favorite football teams on to victory this fall could suffer a major loss, in the form of death or serious injury, if highway safety is not a high priority on these trips, according to the Mississippi Division of Public Safety Planning.

A few safety precautions could make a big difference. "Many fans who enjoy following their favorite teams consider a weekend trip part of the fun," said Donald O'Cain, governor's representative for highway safety and Public Safety Planning's executive director.

"We would like to remind these individuals to wear safety belts and all drivers to avoid drinking alcoholic beverages, stay within speed limits and obey all other safety regulations.

"Fall and football can be a winning combination," O'Cain noted, "but drinking and driving are a dangerous combination, a combination that can lead to death or serious injuries. There also are stiff penalties for persons convicted of driving under the influence (DUI) of alcohol and other mind-altering drugs.

"Safety belts should not be ignored," he said. "Even safe drivers can be involved in motor vehicle crashes caused by others. Safety belts are among the most effective safety devices ever invented, and they can make the difference between death and survival if a crash occurs."

"Excessive speed still is one of the most common causes of motor vehicle crashes," O'Cain noted. "The chances of death or serious injury double with every 10 miles per hour over 50. By trying to save minutes, you could lose your life."

"Traveling to support your football team should be fun," he said, "and taking important highway safety steps can help ensure that this fun will not turn to sorrow because of a highway crash."

Effective lure colors

can't always be explained Bassin' with the pros

If you've ever wondered why bass often seem to show a preference for one lure color over another, professional tournament angler Randy Dearman has some advice: stop worrying about it, because as often as not, the preference just can't be explained.

"I remember a guide trip I had with two clients several years ago," notes the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member, "and one of the gentlemen absolutely insisted on using a strawberry-colored worm while the other chose black/grape color that I'd been having a lot of success using."

"The client using the strawberry worm caught a six-pound bass on his second cast, the largest fish any of us caught all day, but it was the only fish he caught on that lure color."

"We caught about 20 bass on the black/grape plastic worms before he finally changed colors."

Normally, says Dearman, anglers chose brighter lure colors in dingy and off-colored water, and darker or more natural colors in clear water.

"This is a good basic rule to follow, but it doesn't always make sense," he laughs. "For example, chartreuse is one of the most popular and effective colors for both spinnerbaits and crankbaits, but it isn't a natural color at all."

"Are the bass hitting chartreuse lures because they really prefer that color, or are they hitting because it's the only color we're using?"

For many anglers, the Johnson pro explains, lure color is based on confidence, which is extremely important in fishing. The confidence is not so much in the color, however, but in the lure itself.

"I think the more experience a bass fisherman has, the more he tends to move in this direction," says Dearman, a veteran guide on Lake Livingston in Texas. "His color selection tends to be the natural colors that more closely approximate those of the bait the lure is imitating."

"In East Texas in the spring, for example, we use a lot of red lures because the lures we're using then imitate crawfish, which are red. At other times and with other lures we'll use silvers and golds that resemble shad."

Dearman is one of the first to acknowledge, however, that bass do have good eyesight and that they can distinguish different colors. This has also be-

Duck seasons set

Mississippi duck hunters will have a 50-day season and five-duck daily bag limit during the upcoming winter season as a result of action taken by the Commission on Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks at its meeting Aug. 23.

Duck season opens Dec. 2 and closes Dec. 24, reopening Dec. 26 and ends Jan. 21.

The daily bag limit of five ducks may include no more than four mallards, one of which may be a hen, one black duck, one pintail, one canvasback, one redhead, two wood ducks and three mottled ducks.

"This waterfowl season should be one of our best ever," said Sam Polles, DWFP executive director.

"Much of the credit for this longer season and increased bag limit goes to the professionals within our department, Ducks Unlimited, Delta Wildlife Foundation, other professional conservation organizations, including duck hunters and waterfowl enthusiasts."

Polles said this increased hunting opportunity should return large numbers of duck hunters into the sport.

The special teal season extends from Sept. 16 through Sept. 24. The daily bag limit is four, and the possession limit is eight.

Conservation enforcement officers remind hunters to have a valid hunting license signed and on their person before going afield.

Also, all resident and non-resident waterfowl hunters 16 years of age and older are required to purchase a state and federal duck stamp. Both stamps must be signed in ink across the face.

driving question?

Q: How safe are older drivers on the streets and highways?

A: Drivers over age 60 have more accidents per mile driven than do younger drivers. Large scale statistical studies indicate that those who complete a classroom refresher course have 16 percent less fatal crashes. A leading insurer states that this justified fully its 10 percent auto discount.

Drivers age 55 and older may receive an additional auto insurance discount for completing the AARP 55 ALIVE/Mature Driving eight-hour classroom course.

The Bay St. Louis Police Department will sponsor the next class Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 6 and 7, 1:30-5:30 p.m. in the meeting room at Coast Electric.

To register or for more information, call Jackie Magee, volunteer instructor, at 452-2181.

Sky Parade gets set to take off

Clear the runway and hold on to your hats as the third annual Mississippi Sky Parade prepares for takeoff. Sky Parade, the South's largest airshow, will be held Sept. 1-4 at the Jackson International Airport.

This year's event will feature six hours of airshow acts daily, along with more than 200 hot air balloons and the finest in musical entertainment.

"We've concentrated on adding more variety to the event," said Robert Hardin, president of Sky Parade. "The airshow acts range from military demonstrations to dogfights staged in the air, and the entertainment will be out of this world."

The U.S. Jet Team and the U.S. Marine Corps Harriers will be the highlights of the daily airshow activities. Other features throughout the weekend include air races, a first-in Mississippi; a static military display; combat demonstrations by the Army National Guard, amusement rides and concessions.

Sunday, Sept. 3, will be Beach Boys Sunday, when the ever-popular group will perform live beginning at 6:30 p.m. Singing such favorites as "Good Vibrations" and "Kokomo," the Beach Boys will be the highlight of the day, giving event-goers the opportunity to kick back.

after a full day of airshow activities.

"The Beach Boys appeal to the entire family, and this is a family-oriented event," said Hardin. "What better place to see the Beach Boys live than at Mississippi's largest outdoor event?"

In addition to airshow acts and top musical entertainment, Sky Parade will feature the ever-popular hot air balloon displays and races each morning and evening at the Airport. Opening ceremonies will be Friday night, when the public can enter the event free and enjoy the beautiful sight of hundreds of hot air balloons "glowing" to music.

"The sight of those balloons each day is the reason Sky Parade was born," said Hardin. "The incredible thing about Sky Parade is that we are one of the few airshows that combines ballooning with aerobatic and military flying acts."

Additional airshow acts and balloon features are being booked by Sky Parade officials and will be announced in July.

Advance tickets for the event are available at Jitney Jungle stores across the state. Ticket prices are $25 for a weekend pass, $10 for Saturday or Monday, and $15 for Beach Boys Sunday.

Tickets may be purchased at the gate for $15 on Saturday or

Monday, and $20 on Beach Boys Sunday. Children under six are free.

HOROSCOPES

August 27-September 2

ARIES - March 21/April 20

Cutting remarks will only serve to isolate you from the ones you care the most about. Use your honest nature to help instead of hurt. You're very self-involved lately. Look to others and identify their needs — then meet them. A good book highlights your week.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today. Get organized. Complete all domestic tasks that you've been putting off. Clean the house, work in the yard and wash the car. The weight that comes off your shoulders helps start the weekend off right. Keep finances in order.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

Don't lash out at others because of little things this week. Work keeps you more busy than usual. Avoid taking office problems home with you. A family member asks a special favor on Thursday. Do it without asking for anything in return. Catch up on correspondence.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

Money is tight as the week starts, but an unexpected winning keeps you out of the poor house. Say yes to a social invitation; even if you're not in the greatest spirits. It will benefit you in more ways than one. Keep emotions at an even keel as jealousy and petty behavior builds at work.

LEO - July 23/August 23

Smile and spread your Leo charm this week. Whatever you do, people will notice. A special — yet surprising — invitation comes from a Libra. Don't jump too fast. (S)he might have ulterior motives. A visit from an old friend brings exciting news. Finances look good.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Stop letting money rule your world. It's time to put things in their proper perspective. Break out of your humdrum routine. Look forward to new adventures without worrying about what you may be leaving behind. Don't overstay your welcome with a new friend on Friday.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Quiet strategies will get you farther than outright plans. Practice without preaching.

Libras tend to fall in love with the idea of falling in love. Learn the art of getting to know someone before you assess what they mean to you. Quiet wisdom becomes a new friend on Wednesday. Use it. A work promotion is likely.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Read deep into personal matters this week. There's more to friendly squabbles than has already surfaced. Your judgment will be questioned at work on Wednesday. Prepare to stand your ground. A mellow weekend fits the bill. A new friend will impress you in some way.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

If you're thinking about moving away, be sure to tie up loose ends before you go. An estranged friend makes an effort this week. Give her/him a chance. A Virgo tries to win your affection with lies. Don't be a pushover. Know your priorities when it comes to work.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

It's hard to keep your mind on your work this week, but it's important that you do. A phone call on Tuesday instills deadline fear. You must make social sacrifices to keep an associate calm. Get some much-needed rest over the weekend. A social event will be surprisingly fun.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

A new love steals your attention away from your work and family life. But, a new commitment can put a stain on an old friendship. Take a Leo's advice on matters of the heart. When actions speak louder than words, why aren't you listening? On Thursday, think before you speak.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

Don't let your bad mood take others down with you. Put a smile on your face, if only for their sakes. Keep priorities in order both at work and at home. An athletic break in your routine helps clear your head. Keep your options open over the weekend. There could be good times in store.

YOUR BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

The next 12 months: Choose your friends carefully this year. As a long-time romance ends, friends will play a monumental role in your life in the months ahead. Make sure you have positive influences and cheery attitudes surrounding you; you'll need them to bring you up when you're down. You will find better things are ahead this spring, as you start to get your feet on the ground. Work serves as both an ego boost and a constant this year. If you are career-minded, a focused approach will put you on the right track. Money matters improve faster than you can say Donald Trump.
